Investment Strategy

The portfolio invests, under normal circumstances, at least 80% of its net assets (plus the amount of borrowings, if any, for investment purposes) in domestic common stocks. The portfolio invests primarily in common stocks of growth-oriented companies. Portfolio construction emphasizes stock specific risk while minimizing other sources of broad market risk. The goal is a portfolio whose relative performance is not dependent on the market environment.

The portfolio's sub-adviser, Wellington Management Company LLP (the "sub-adviser"), employs a "bottom up" approach, using fundamental analysis to identify specific securities within industries or sectors for purchase or sale. A "bottom-up" approach evaluates individual companies in the context of broader market factors.

Variable annuities are long-term tax deferred vehicles designed for retirement purposes. They offer three main benefits: tax-deferred treatment of earnings, guaranteed death benefit options, and guaranteed lifetime payout options. Variable annuities are subject to investment risk, including possible loss of principal.

The value of the variable annuity will fluctuate so that when surrendered, it may be worth more or less than the total of premium payments. Past performance is no guarantee of future results.

A number of investment options, or subaccounts, are available under the variable annuity.

Growth stocks can be volatile and experience sharp price declines and certain types of stocks can be extremely volatile and subject to greater price swings than the broader market.

Returns on growth stocks may not move in tandem with returns on other categories of stocks or the market as a whole. Growth stocks may be particularly susceptible to rapid price swings or to adverse developments. Growth stocks as a group may be out of favor and underperform the overall equity market for a long period of time, for example, while the market favors "value" stocks.

There are other investment choices available with different management fees associated with each choice.
